

MEDIA RELATIONS DURING OIL SPILLS

California Department of Fish and Wildlife
Office of Spill Prevention and Response

Value of working with media

- Provide vital information to stakeholders fast
- Build trust and relieve anxiety
- Promote response's good work

We achieve balance

What are we balancing?

Public's perception Governor's perception
Legislators' perception
Local Government's Environmentalists' perception perception
Nation's perception

What we know
What we can share at the moment

Perception is reality

How we see ourselves

How others see us

Joint Information Center

Purpose:

- Share information and resources
- Develop unified strategy and message
- Address individual and multiple needs

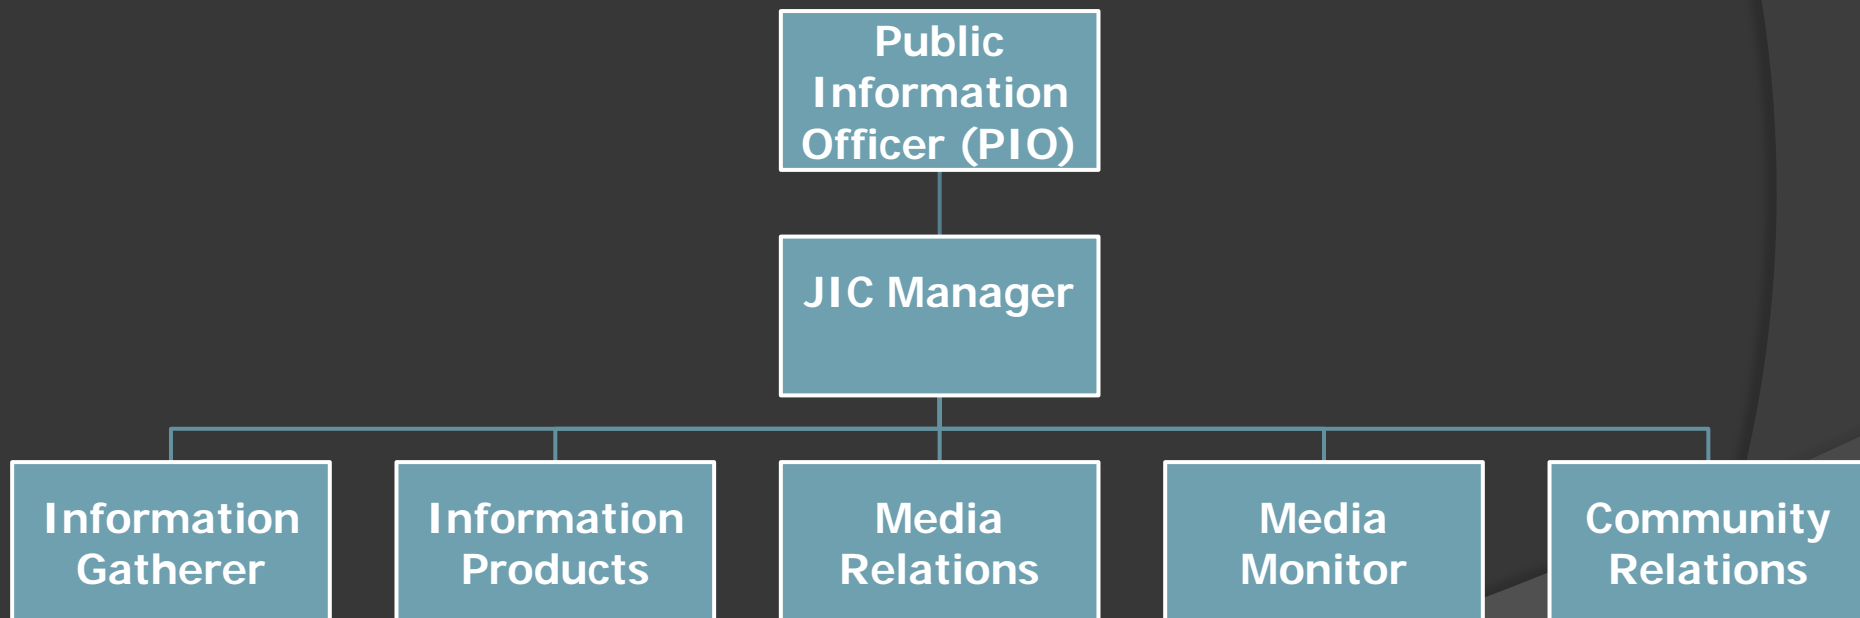

Who works in the JIC in an oil spill?

- Department of Fish and Wildlife
- U.S. Coast Guard
- Responsible party
- Other agencies (state and regional parks, NOAA, Cal EMA, local government)

JIC Structure

Led by the Public Information Officer usually from the federal or state agency

Messaging – Key components

- Compassion: concern for public safety and the environment
- Action: fast, effective, efficient response underway
- Commitment: Work closely with local, state and federal partners for thorough cleanup through to restoration

What the media wants to know

- ◉ How much was spilled? *
- ◉ Who is to blame? *
- ◉ How did it happen? *
- ◉ Where and when will the oil wash ashore?
- ◉ What are the impacts to wildlife, the environment, the economy (shipping, fishing)?
- ◉ What beaches will be closed?
- ◉ What are you doing about it?
- ◉ How much will it cost?
- ◉ How much oil has been collected? *

Challenges

- Timely and accurate information
- Transparency and accessibility
- Today's media cycle runs 24/7
- News helicopters and reporters often at incident before responders
- Individuals and groups outside of the response voice opinions before we get there
- Social media lets unofficial information to spread quickly
- Some information (investigation) can't be released

Outreach methods

Traditional

- News conferences
- News releases
- Media interviews
- Media tours
- Community meetings

Evolving

- Websites
- Social media

Must have presence

Tools - Think Strategic

- ⦿ It's not just a website – it's a resource
- ⦿ Brand where you can
- ⦿ Get them to follow you now, and they will trust you later
- ⦿ Become “the source”
