

working near the wreck site and is presumed to be the first ordinance fired at the Montebello from the I-21. A second torpedo found its mark and took her to the bottom. There she remained unseen until November of 1996 when she was located in deep water near Cambria, California, still holding her cargo of oil.

be the first ordinance fired at the Montebello from the I-21. A second torpedo found its mark and took her to the bottom. There she remained unseen until the summer of 1996 when she was located near Cambria, California, still holding her cargo of oil.

Aired at the Monk's
and torpedo found its mark.
There she remained until 1996 when she was sunk near Cambodia, California.
Cargo of oil.

Ships Model of Tanker Montebello
Maritime Museum of San Diego

1492 N Harbor Dr
San Diego, CA 92101-3309
(619) 234-9153

Note:

*History of model is unknown or whether it's considered a shipbuilder's model
There are some discrepancies with the model as compared to observations made during reconnaissance dives and historical photographs*

Photographed by Robert Schwemmer
October 10, 2007
NOAA-Office of National Marine Sanctuaries-West Coast Region